

Exact glosses of the incorporating verb meanings found in 10 or more of the sample languages in the typological survey

Each gloss included in this table is found for a translational equivalent of the relevant verb meaning in one or more sample languages. When a single translational equivalent was glossed in the source(s) in different ways, i.e. had different English translations, the glosses are separated by slashes.

<sup>1</sup> Note that the meanings 'catch' and 'grasp' are also part of the label 'catch'. Here and in several other cases, we have included a verb under the label that best fits its most common or first-mentioned gloss. While this procedure was applied as systematically as possible, it should be clear that merging glosses of language-specific verbs under homogeneous semantic labels was not a trivial task.
